It started very clam Sunday morning and rain clouds moved in quickly. Shortly after that conditions improved. We still managed to get some good flights in.

Crestwood Fair Display

A stall had been arranged at the fair and barring the wind all reports indicate it was a great day. A big thanks to David for organising it and also a big thanks to Neville, George, Russell, and Jeff for assisting (I hope I haven't left anyone out).

Next launch day

The next launch day is scheduled for Saturday 31st October 2009. At this stage the weather forecasts predict fine weather, however, with the recent rain the pathways may be muddy. The launch day will proceed pending further site inspections.

In addition, Berg's Hobbies may not attend this launch day. So if you need motors you will need to make other arrangements.
